

Question:

How does the Common Law look at (a) the body and (b) property as it might relate to the body or body parts, cells or cellular information?

A thesis submitted for the degree of Master of Laws of the University of New England

I certify that the substance of this thesis has not already been submitted for any degree and is not currently being submitted for any other degree or qualification.

I certify that any help received in preparing this thesis and all sources used have been acknowledged in this thesis.

Signature

By Adam Johnston BA/LLB (Macquarie) Dip. Legal Practice (College of Law)

Supervisor: Professor Paul Martin

December 2010

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements.....	5
Abstract	6
Introduction.....	8
The current state of the law.....	12
Intention.....	14
Social importance of the body and modernity.....	15
Inconsistency.....	18
Consent.....	22
‘Repulsively wrong’.....	24
Prior to isolation.....	27
Does the interposition of a company alter the situation?.....	29
The ‘Lockean exception’.....	32
Privacy.....	35
Innate qualities.....	39
The jurisprudence of slavery.....	41
Was Mr. Moore enslaved?.....	45
Proximity.....	48
An injunction of sorts.....	54

The tort of conversion.....	56
Narrowing the distance.....	61
The Mabo decision.....	63
Recasting property law.....	67
Policy considerations.....	69
Time and effort.....	73
Finding property for the individual.....	79
The Human Tissue Acts.....	85
Mining rights.....	87
Changing our view of the human body.....	91
The common law’s cautious advance.....	102
The appropriateness of monetary calculations.....	109
Providing for my neighbour.....	116
Scientific ‘monopoly’.....	119
The monopoly versus fairness.....	123
Striking a balance.....	125
Inconsistencies.....	130

What sort of property?.....	134
A notion of fairness.....	137
Reconsidering conversion.....	139
Conclusion.....,	144
Bibliographical guide.....	146

Acknowledgements

I wish to acknowledge the advice and assistance of my Supervisor, Professor Paul Martin of the Faculty of the Professions, in the preparation of this work.

I also wish to acknowledge the love, support and patience of my mother, Sally. She has supported me unwaveringly, throughout my life and legal career.