

The dynamics of Chinese learning journeys:

a longitudinal study of adult learners of Mandarin in Australia

Isabel Mary Tasker

BA Hons (York, UK); Grad Dip Chin (Liaoning and Nanjing);
Cert Applied Language Studies (York St John);
MA Area Studies (Far East) (London);
Cert IV Instructional Multimedia (CMC, WA);
Grad Cert Higher Education (UNE)

A thesis submitted for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy of the University of New England

Date of submission: 16 March 2012

Acknowledgements

It has been a long journey to produce this thesis and I have been lucky to have been guided along the way by two wonderful supervisors, Dr. Elizabeth Ellis and Associate Professor Robyn Smyth, to whom I owe a huge debt of gratitude for their wisdom, professionalism, encouragement and patient support. Our fortnightly Friday breakfast meetings have been a something to look forward to! Professor Jeff Siegel and Dr. Peter McClenaghan also each took on a supervisory role for a semester and brought valuable fresh perspectives.

I am grateful to have received scholarship funding from the Australian Postgraduate Association, the New South Wales Institute of Educational Research, and the Rod Gerber Memorial Scholarship fund.

The award of an Australian Learning and Teaching Council Citation for Outstanding Contributions to Student Learning, in 2008, provided funds which enabled me to attend the Pennsylvania State University Graduate Summer Institute in Applied Linguistics in 2009. I am grateful to the students who nominated me for the award, and to my colleagues and professional referees for supporting my application. The summer institute was an intensely stimulating and rewarding experience which contributed greatly to the development of the conceptual framework for my research; it was an especial privilege to be taught by and have conversations with Claire Kramsch, Diane Larsen-Freeman, Merrill Swain, James Lantolf and Leo Van Lier, and I thank them, and my classmates at the institute.

In the final stages of preparation of the thesis I could not have done without the invaluable assistance of Vicki Knox, both in terms of editorial and formatting expertise, and equally significantly in terms of generosity and encouragement.

Throughout this long PhD journey I have been supported by a wonderful network of friends and family. I thank you all for being a part of my life and for helping me to reach this milestone.

Finally and perhaps most significantly, I thank the many students of Mandarin I have worked with over the years, and most especially the research participants in this enquiry, who have inspired me with their learning and generously shared their stories.

Abstract

The dynamics of Chinese learning journeys: a longitudinal study of adult learners of Mandarin in Australia

This thesis is concerned with the nature and development of adult learners' involvement with learning and using Mandarin Chinese in the long term, in the context of other aspects of their lives. It examines their individual learning journeys for the interweaving and layering of different kinds of learning activity over time. The study looks beyond the relatively homogeneous student groups in the Chinese classrooms and lecture halls of large metropolitan universities, and instead gives a voice to the experience of people learning Chinese who are based in country areas, who choose distance learning, who are older, and who study part-time or independently for many years. The influence and effects of long-term learning Chinese learning, both on individual learners, but also through them upon the various contexts and communities which they inhabit, is considered.

Complexity theory is drawn upon as an appropriate framework for conceptualising the dynamics of the language learning journey: emphasises context, views diversity, change over time and non-linearity as central, and incorporates multiple interrelated timescales.

The enquiry is presented as a multi-layered longitudinal qualitative case study. Two surveys, 5 years apart, provide extensive reflective data from an 'outer' group of 26 participants. In addition, more frequent in-depth interviews and other activities conducted with an 'inner' group of 7 participants yield a complementary set of detailed data with a rich narrative component. The study introduces a method of multiple timeline analysis, and a concept of dynamic activity patterns, to represent and interpret learners' engagement with learning Chinese as it evolves over time. The existence of fallow periods and their role within individual learning trajectories is also introduced, and explored from an identity perspective.

Conceptually, this thesis combines perspectives from adult and independent learning with those of applied linguistics to contribute, to developing perspectives on foreign language learning beyond the classroom and beyond the institution, a particular focus on the longitudinal view. Within the rapidly expanding disciplinary field of Chinese as a Foreign Language (CFL), this study offers a better understanding of the efforts, contexts and needs of individual long-term learners.

Certification

I certify that the substance of this thesis has not already been submitted for any degree and is not currently being submitted for any other degree or qualification.

I certify that any help received in preparing this thesis and all sources used have been acknowledged in this thesis.

Signature:

A solid black rectangular box used to redact the signature.

Table of contents

Acknowledgements .....	iii
Abstract .....	v
Certification .....	vii
Chapter contents .....	ix
Tables, figures and charts.....	xvii
Conventions, abbreviations, acronyms and Chinese terms list.....	xix
Dedication.....	xxii
 Chapter 1. Introduction .....	 1
 Interlude. Stella’s story .....	 9
 Chapter 2. The landscape .....	 17
Introduction .....	17
2.1 The linguistic terrain: prominent features of the Chinese language for learners ...	18
2.2 Shifting contours: developing options for learning Chinese as a Foreign Language .....	21
2.2.1 Chinese government strategies to promote Chinese learning worldwide .....	22
2.2.2 Growth and promotion of Chinese learning in countries outside of China .....	23
2.2.3 Teaching and learning Chinese as an additional language in the Australian school and university context .....	24
2.2.4 Teaching and learning Chinese as an additional language in Australia outside the school and university context .....	26
2.3 The spatial dimension: distance and contiguity .....	27
2.3.1 Geographical distance: learners in regional Australia .....	28
2.3.2 Distance education in Australia .....	29
2.3.2.1 Distance education for languages.....	31
2.3.3 Changing opportunities for access to Chinese linguistic environments .....	31
2.3.4 Relative positioning of learner, teacher and linguistic resources.....	33
2.4 The learning modality dimension: scales of structure and informality .....	35

2.5	The temporal dimension .....	38
2.5.1	Learner's stage of life.....	38
2.5.2	Learner's stage of learning .....	39
2.5.3	Variable intensity of pace of learning .....	39
2.6	Research Questions .....	41
2.7	Exploring Complexity .....	42
2.7.1	Complexity 'visualisation' .....	44
2.8	Summary .....	45

Chapter 3. The long view of learning (literature review) ..... 47

Introduction	.....	47
3.1	Trajectories in the life course.....	47
3.2	Adult learning.....	49
3.2.1	Five orientations to adult learning.....	50
3.2.2	Adult learning and human development.....	52
3.2.3	Lifelong learning .....	53
3.2.4	The learning journey.....	54
3.2.5	Learning trajectories and learning careers .....	55
3.3	The long view of language learning .....	58
3.3.1	Orientation .....	58
3.3.1.1	Background: approaches to SLA .....	57
3.3.1.2	Introduction to long-term language learning .....	59
3.3.2	Features and parameters of longitudinal research into language learning.....	59
3.3.2.1	Length .....	60
3.3.2.2	Tempo .....	60
3.3.2.3	Setting .....	61
3.3.2.4	Consistency of learner background .....	61
3.3.2.5	Proficiency level .....	62
3.3.3	Proficiency-related longitudinal studies .....	62
3.3.4	Longitudinal studies centred on learner experience: key concepts .....	62
3.3.4.1	Identity, agency and investment .....	64
3.3.4.2	Autonomy .....	67
3.3.4.3	Emotion .....	69
3.3.4.4	Motivation .....	72
3.3.5	Long-term language learning journey studies: beyond the institution .....	73
3.3.5.1	Specific longitudinal studies .....	78
3.3.6	Accounts of learner experience of learning Chinese .....	82
3.4	Conclusion.....	84

Interlude: Michelle's story..... 85

Chapter 4. Methodology and design .....	89
Introduction .....	89
4.1 Conceptual framework and selection of the methodology.....	89
4.1.1 Complexity thinking in research design.....	90
4.1.2 Multiple timescales .....	90
4.1.3 Longitudinal research .....	92
4.1.4 Case study.....	94
4.1.4.1 Case and system .....	95
4.1.5 Narrative, life-history method .....	96
4.2 Overall plan of the project .....	97
4.2.1 Design .....	97
4.2.1.1 Attrition and intensity .....	100
4.2.2 Timeframe .....	101
4.2.3 Identifying the potential participants.....	103
4.2.3.1 Criterion sampling .....	103
4.2.3.2 Ethical considerations: connections between researcher and participants .....	105
4.2.3.3 Procedure followed for contacting potential participants .....	105
4.3 Strategies and techniques for collection of empirical materials: selection and implementation.....	106
4.3.1 Preliminary/antecedent stage: student reflective writings.....	106
4.3.2 Surveys: rationale .....	107
4.3.2.1 Survey One: design .....	108
4.3.2.2 Survey One: implementation and procedure .....	108
4.3.2.3 Survey Two: design .....	109
4.3.2.4 Activities questionnaire within Survey Two .....	109
4.3.2.5 Survey Two: implementation and procedure .....	111
4.3.3 Semi-structured interviews: rationale .....	111
4.3.3.1 Interview setting and mode: face-to-face and by telephone .....	112
4.3.3.2 Interview conduct and guides .....	113
4.3.3.3 Interview 1 .....	114
4.3.3.4 Interview 2 .....	115
4.3.3.5 Interview 3 .....	115
4.3.4 Language activities: rationale .....	116
4.3.4.1 Language activities: design .....	116
4.3.5 Self reports and other ongoing informal contact .....	117
4.4 Data analysis.....	118
4.4.1 What constitutes analysis? .....	118
4.4.2 Procedures.....	119
4.4.3 Inevitable change and evolution in a longitudinal study .....	121
4.5 Remarks: issues of methodology regarding longitudinal study.....	121
4.5.1 Questions regarding inclusion or exclusion of partial participants .....	121
4.5.2 The longitudinal study and researcher as practitioner.....	123
4.6 Summary .....	123

Chapter 5. Learning trajectories of the outer group .....	125
Introduction .....	125
5.1 Overview of data sets/groups.....	125
5.2 Snapshot: 41 learners of Chinese engaged in distance learning.....	126
5.2.1 Demographic and background details .....	126
5.2.1.1 Age and gender .....	126
5.2.1.2 Place of residence .....	126
5.2.1.3 Work and home situation .....	128
5.2.1.4 Full-time or part-time study.....	128
5.2.1.5 Language background .....	129
5.2.2 Timelines of the Chinese learning experiences for the 41 learners.....	131
5.2.2.1 Beginnings – how did their Chinese learning journeys start? .....	131
5.2.2.2 Timelines as a graphic interpretive device.....	132
5.2.2.3 Comments on the data presented so far .....	136
5.2.3 Looking back – the lessons of experience.....	137
5.2.3.1 Recognition of the complexity of the task and re-evaluation of time required – acceptance of a long-term commitment.....	138
5.2.3.2 Recognition of the extent of formal linguistic differences between Chinese and English (and other European languages) .....	138
5.2.3.3 Recognition of the importance of developing competence in various skills concurrently .....	139
5.2.3.4 Recognition of the benefits of a relaxed, playful, self-nurturing attitude to learning .....	139
5.3 Progression: 26 learners followed up 5 years later.....	140
5.3.1 Overview of the 26 respondents: update of demographic details .....	141
5.3.1.1 Family connections with China or Chinese.....	143
5.3.1.2 Time spent in China .....	143
5.3.2 Extension of timelines through the period 2005 to 2010.....	144
5.3.2.1 Patterns of engagement between Survey One and Survey Two .....	144
5.3.2.2 Observations afforded by an overview of the full timelines .....	151
5.3.2.3 Limitations of the timeline method as used so far.....	153
5.4 Retrospection: participants look back on their timelines .....	154
5.4.1 Participants' views of influences on their timelines .....	154
5.4.2 Events, stages and achievements perceived as significant for their timelines.....	156
5.4.2.1 Achievements presented as communication-related.....	157
5.4.2.2 Achievements presented as study-related.....	158
5.4.2.3 Achievements presented as new understandings and new connections .....	159
5.4.3 Changing perceptions of challenges and rewards of learning Chinese .....	159
5.4.3.1 Shifting themes in the challenges reported in the group.....	159
5.4.3.2 The dynamics of individual perspectives on challenges and rewards.....	161
5.5 Anticipation: looking ahead to continuing engagement with Chinese .....	162
5.5.1 Stopping or dropping Chinese .....	163
5.5.2 Reasons for beginning and continuing Chinese compared.....	165
5.5.3 Maintaining engagement with Chinese .....	167
5.5.4 Perceptions and attitudes to continuing Chinese – what does it feel like? .....	169
5.5.4.1 Feelings about beginning and continuing Chinese, recorded in Survey One .....	169
5.5.4.2 Introducing metaphor chains .....	171
5.5.4.3 General description of the metaphors .....	171

5.5.4.4 Metaphor chains for four individuals .....	174
5.6 Elaborated timelines .....	176
5.7 Conclusion .....	177
Chapter 6. Dynamic contours of engagement with Chinese .....	179
6.1 Past, present and future practice questionnaire.....	179
6.2 Procedures for processing, and first-stage analysis of responses .....	180
6.2.1 Emergence of concept of ‘intentional direction’ .....	181
6.2.2 Emergence of the analytical construct of dynamic activity patterns .....	182
6.3 Analysis of activity patterns, comparing individuals across the group.....	184
6.3.1 Second-stage analysis: drawing out single elements of the activity patterns .....	184
6.3.1.1 Trend up to now .....	185
6.3.1.2 Likelihood for the future .....	188
6.3.1.3 Intentional direction .....	189
6.3.2 Third-stage analysis of activity patterns: comparing composite aspects .....	191
6.3.2.1 Overall level of intensity of Chinese related activity .....	191
6.3.2.2 Dynamic contour of ebbing and flowing engagement (past, current, future) .....	194
6.4 Dynamic patterns of engagement: summary .....	200
Chapter 7. Individual learning stories .....	203
Introduction .....	203
7.1 “It has given me another life” – Brenda’s story.....	204
7.1.1 Commentary on Brenda’s timeline.....	207
7.1.2 Themes in Brenda’s story .....	208
7.2 “Hopefully in the future it does help my business but originally it was a personal choice” – Clive’s story .....	208
7.2.1 Commentary on Clive’s timeline .....	211
7.2.2 Themes in Clive’s story .....	212
7.3 “My momentum fluctuates. There is this underlying fascination with the language and culture that never goes away, then it’s sparked by an event or an opportunity” – Michelle’s story .....	213
7.3.1 Commentary on Michelle’s timeline .....	213
7.3.2 Themes in Michelle’s story .....	214
7.4 “It’s like two forward, one back, two forward, one back. But that’s okay as long as it’s always still forward” – Rachel’s story .....	215
7.4.1 Commentary on Rachel’s timeline.....	218
7.4.2 Themes in Rachel’s story .....	219
7.5 “I gave myself a decade. It would be a skill to add to my life in different capacities” – Marty’s story.....	220

7.5.1 Commentary on Marty's timeline.....	224
7.5.2 Themes in Marty's story .....	225
7.6 "I would classify it as a lifetime's ambition: I would like to be able to speak it really, really fluently and really well. I sort of feel I might be half way there" – Stella's story .....	226
7.6.1 Commentary on Stella's timeline.....	226
7.6.2 Themes in Stella's story .....	226
7.7 "I am just following in the footsteps of the language" .....
– Stephanie's story.....	229
7.7.1 Commentary on Stephanie's timeline .....	235
7.7.2 Themes in Stephanie's story .....	236
7.8 Summary .....	237

Chapter 8. Insights from the long view ..... 239

Introduction .....	239
8.1 Contribution of the complexity framework .....	239
8.1.1 Multiple levels of organisation .....	239
8.1.2 Non-linearity.....	240
8.1.3 Sensitivity to initial conditions.....	240
8.2 Capturing dynamic trajectories.....	241
8.3 Ripples of influence: the learner in social context .....	242
8.4 Alignment of learning opportunities with 'contexts of significance' .....	244
8.5 Attitudes to developing speaking skills.....	245
8.6 Aspirations, intentions and rethinking success.....	246
8.6.1 Learner and user: dynamic, fluid identities .....	247
8.7 Desire .....	248
8.8 Gender .....	250
8.9 The global and the local .....	251
8.10 Summary .....	252

Chapter 9. Conclusion..... 253

9.1 Synthesis .....	253
9.1 Limitations, and areas for future research.....	258
9.2 Applications/recommendations .....	259
9.3 Closing remarks.....	260

References .....	261
-------------------------	------------

Appendices .....	279
-------------------------	------------

Appendix 1. Ethics documents .....	279
------------------------------------	-----

Appendix 2. Prompts for pilot reflective writing .....	291
--	-----

Appendix 3. Survey One .....	292
------------------------------	-----

Appendix 4. Full list of activities .....	302
---	-----

Appendix 5. Survey Two .....	304
------------------------------	-----

Appendix 6. Interview 1 guide .....	333
-------------------------------------	-----

Appendix 7. Interview 2 guide .....	334
-------------------------------------	-----

Appendix 8. List of Activity Patterns .....	335
---	-----

Appendix 9. Elaborated timelines of the core group .....	338
--	-----

Tables, figures and charts

List of Tables

Table 2.1: Livingstone's (2001) four categories of adult learning applied to Chinese learning situations .....	36
Table 2.2: Preliminary mapping of adult long-term CFL in terms of complexity concepts .....	46
Table 4.1: Summary of the design of the study .....	99
Table 4.2: The datasets of different lengths .....	122
Table 5.1: Current working situation .....	128
Table 5.2: Language background .....	129
Table 5.3: Languages spoken or studied among the group .....	131
Table 5.4: Key to interpret the colours on the timeline graphics .....	144
Table 5.5: The challenges of learning Chinese, as described in Survey One and Survey Two, 5 years apart: .....	160
Table 5.6: Categories for mapping dynamics .....	161
Table 5.7: Dynamics in perception of challenges and rewards .....	162
Table 5.8: Metaphors used by four respondents at four stages .....	175
Table 6.1: Dynamic activity patterns, worked example .....	183
Table 6.2: Descriptions of the six levels of composite intensity .....	192
Table 6.3: Comparing proportions of activities with a high component and with a zero component for each individual.....	192
Table 6.4: Dynamic contour categories.....	195
Table 6.5: Rising contour activities for Brenda .....	198
Table 7.1: Comparison of individual Skype tutoring with university DLL.....	228

List of Figures

Figure 2.1: Relationship between different modes of language learning .....	37
Figure 4.1: Schematic diagram of data collected .....	98
Figure 5.1: Schematic diagram of data collected (repeated).....	126
Figure 5.2: The 41 simple timelines compared over their full duration .....	133
Figure 5.3: The 41 simple timelines compared from 1989 to 2005.....	135
Figure 5.4: Chain of data collected by looking backwards and forwards at different points in time.....	141
Figure 5.5: Timelines of group of 26, extended to 2010 .....	145
Figure 5.6: Formal distance study combined with periods in China: Brenda, Clive and Stephanie.....	145

Figure 5.7: Informal activities: Esther, Nina, Wendy, Xavier, Nick, Sharon, Harry and Marty.....	147
Figure 5.8: Engagement in self-directed study: Keith, Rachel, Scott and Stella .....	147
Figure 5.9: Work-related long-term residence in China: Keith, Russell and Sonia ...	147
Figure 5.10: Periods of formal study in China: Clive, Marty, Scott and Stephanie ...	149
Figure 5.11: Periods of face-to-face study: Heather, Russell and Wendy .....	149
Figure 5.12: Periods of no activity: Lola, Michael-Eddie, Michelle and Mick .....	149

List of Charts

Chart 5.1: Distribution of participants by age and gender .....	127
Chart 5.2: Distribution of participants by place of residence and gender .....	127
Chart 5.3: Distribution by gender and age group among study modes.....	129
Chart 5.4: Experience with languages other than English and Mandarin, by numbers of respondents .....	127
Chart 5.5: Year of first experiences of studying Chinese .....	132
Chart 5.6: Distribution by age and gender of Survey Two participants.....	142
Chart 5.7: Distribution by gender and place of residence of Survey Two participants .....	142
Chart 5.8: Identity in relation to Chinese, past, present and future.....	164
Chart 5.9: Reasons for beginning and continuing Chinese, 5 years apart .....	166
Chart 6.1: Trends up to now .....	185
Chart 6.2: Trends reported for activities actually done leading up to 2010 .....	186
Chart 6.3: Future likelihood .....	189
Chart 6.4: Intentional direction .....	189
Chart 6.5: Levels of Intensity .....	193
Chart 6.6: Dynamic profiles of engagement in Chinese activities .....	196
Chart 6.7: A closer look at the rising profiles.....	196

List of Boxes

Box 2.1: Personal anecdote: the changed environment for learning Chinese outside of China .....	32
---	----

Conventions, abbreviations, acronyms and Chinese terms list

Italic font is used when words from Chinese are annotated in the pinyin transliteration system.

Italics are used within the text to signal emphasis, and can highlight the introduction of new conceptual terminology.

Bold font is used in chapter 5 to highlight themes emerging from the data for discussion.

The convention of using uppercase font for conceptual metaphors is followed.

In-text quotations are within double inverted commas, unless they are indented as block quotes.

Single inverted commas are used to enclose terms introduced for the first time.

The individual learning stories in Chapter 7, and in Interludes 1 and 2 (which appear after Chapters 1 and 3 respectively) are distinguished by the use of a sans serif font.

Chinese language names and terms

(Note: tone marks are added here for reference, but when these terms are used within English text the tone marks are frequently omitted.)

bopomofo	common name for zhùyīn fúhào transliteration system
fántǐzì	繁体字 traditional or full-form characters
guānxi	关系 system of personalised networks of influence in Chinese society
guóyǔ	国语 Modern Standard Chinese or Mandarin (term used in Taiwan)
Hànbān	汉办 China National Office for Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language (NOTCFL)
hànyǔ	汉语 the Chinese language including its different dialect varieties (mainland Chinese term)
hànyǔ pīnyīn	汉语拼音, alphabetic transliteration system for Mandarin Chinese
huáyǔ	华语 Modern Standard Chinese or Mandarin (term used in Singapore, Philippines, Malaysia); sometimes also used as an equivalent to hànyǔ
jiǎnhuàzì, jiǎntǐzì	简化字 or 简体字 simplified characters
pīnyīn, hànyǔ pīnyīn	拼音, 汉语拼音 alphabetic transliteration system for Mandarin Chinese
pǔtōnghuà	普通话 Modern Standard Chinese or Mandarin (term used in Mainland China)
tàijíquán	太极拳 Tai Chi (Tai Qi), or Chinese shadow boxing
wényán	文言 formal or literary Chinese
zhùyīn fúhào, chu-yin	注音符号 symbol-based transliteration system used in Taiwan

Abbreviations and acronyms

ABS	Australian Bureau of Statistics
ACT	Australian Capital Territory
BALLI	Beliefs about Language Learning Inventory
BBC	British Broadcasting Corporation
CAL	Chinese as an additional language
CALL	Computer-assisted language learning
CFL	Chinese as a foreign language
CMC	Computer-mediated communication
CT	Complexity theory
DE	Distance education
DL	Distance learning
DLL	Distance language learning
EFL	English as a foreign language
ESL	English as a second language
FSI	Foreign Service Institute (USA)
ICT	Information and communication technology
JFL	Japanese as a foreign language
L2	Second language
LIFE	Learning in Informal and Formal Environments
MA	Master of Arts
MSC	Modern Standard Chinese
MSN	an instant messaging service (and a collection of websites and services)
NA, or N/A	not applicable
NALSAS	National Asian Languages and Studies in Schools Strategy
NALSSP	National Asian Languages and Studies in Schools Program
NNS	Non-native speaker
NOTCFL	China National Office for Teaching Chinese as a Foreign Language, or Hanban
NS	Native speaker
NSW	New South Wales
OECD	Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development
QQ	Instant messaging service in China
RFDS	Royal Flying Doctor Service
SILL	Strategy Inventory for Language Learning
SLA	Second language acquisition
TAFE	Technical and Further Education
MSC	Modern Standard Chinese
TCFL	Teaching Chinese as a foreign language
TESOL	Teaching of English to speakers of other languages

TL	Target language
TLRP	Teaching and Learning Research Programme (UK)
U3A	University of Third Age
UK	United Kingdom
UNE	University of New England, Australia
US, USA	United States, United States of America
VOIP	Voice over internet protocol
WEA	Workers' Education Association

Dedication

To my father, Tony Tasker, MD, FRCP (1915–2008)