
Lei Gong

Bachelor of Arts, Wuhan University of Technology, China
Master of Arts (Journalism), University of South Australia, Australia

A thesis submitted for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy of the University of New England

November, 2007
Acknowledgements

The research work presented in this thesis owes a debt to my supervisors, staff at UNE, friends, and family, for their persistent support throughout my PhD study.

My highest gratitude goes to Associate Professor Dugald Williamson, my Principal Supervisor, who offered the most valuable instruction, guidance and help to my PhD research. His expertise has guided my research every step of the way. I thank him for inspiring and encouraging me to strive for the high standards he set for this research. I have always been deeply moved by his selfless endeavour and contribution to the supervision work, which not only encouraged me to do my best to finish my PhD study but also taught me to be a person with noble professional ethics. Overall, I thank him for the best supervision a PhD student can ever hope for.

I am also thankful to Dr Paul Adams and Associate Professor Michael Sharkey, my Co-supervisors, for setting high standards and providing valuable guidance. Their extensive experiences in the field of Communication Studies have provided me with fundamental knowledge to carry out this research. Without their help, this project would never have materialised.

I would also like to thank Associate Professor Kun Li and Professor Boxu Yang, at School of Journalism and Communication of Peking University, for their generous advice in the area of comparative journalism and international communication.

I am indebted to Dr Wen Han, the Division Chief of International Relations, Beijing Organizing Committee for the Games of the XXIX Olympiad, for providing information about Beijing's bids and preparations for the Olympic Games.

I also wish to thank Ms. Gillian Willis, the School Manager, Ms. Helena Davies, the Administrative Assistant, and Mr. Peter O'Donohue, the Technical Officer, for providing the exceptional levels of administrative and technical services.

I would like to express my gratitude to University of New England for providing financial support of International Postgraduate Research Scholarship (IPRS) and UNE Research Assistantship (UNERA).

My sincere appreciation goes to my Alma Mater, Wuhan University of Technology for her support during my study abroad.

My beloved parents, with their deep understanding and profound love, provided me with the most precious support. Without the love and sacrifice of my parents, I would not have done this research.
Abstract

The thesis combines quantitative and qualitative analysis to compare selected Chinese and Australian press representations of Olympic-related events and issues. It focuses on The Australian and The Sydney Morning Herald for Australia, and The People’s Daily, China Daily and Xinhua News Agency for China, over the period 1990 to 2004. The press systems converge on the Olympics but diverge in the way they frame news and express cultural and ideological values. Content analysis shows that the Chinese press referred more to economic improvements and social development, following the work of the Communist Party of China in the Games bidding and preparations. In contrast, the Australian press emphasised political issues, especially in criticisms of China’s human rights record. It treated Olympic-related issues as more complex and intense, and harder to resolve, presenting more diverse social actors and perspectives. Building on content analysis, discourse analysis of news language and values, and cultural values and philosophies, shows how such differences relate to the roles of the press in a liberal-democratic and a transitional authoritarian society. The news values in the Australian coverage included not only journalistic independence but also drama and controversy, providing a seemingly diversified picture of China’s involvement in the Olympics but sometimes stereotypical descriptions. The Chinese coverage reflected the news values of following official policy, respecting authority, and advocating social stability. It avoided controversy in order to provide positive representations of Olympic-related activities domestically, and develop China’s new open image internationally. While the study confirms the official role of the Chinese press as a voice of “the people” and a tool of the Party, it shows the complexity of this dual role and the specific discursive strategies used to maintain it in changing circumstances. In particular, following the failure of China’s first bid in 1993 to host the Olympics, focused on the country’s advantages, the official press and publicity adopted a “low-key” strategy in the bid and preparations for the 2008 Games. This strategy sought to counter political criticisms, including human rights debates, by re-framing them ideologically in terms of myths of progress, the people and the Olympic spirit.
Certification

I certify that the substance of this thesis has not already been submitted for any degree and is not currently being submitted for any other degree or qualification.

I certify that any help received in preparing this thesis, and all sources used, have been acknowledged in this thesis.

Signature
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ....................................................................................................... i
Abstract....................................................................................................................... iii
Certification................................................................................................................. iv
Abbreviations .............................................................................................................. ix
List of Tables................................................................................................................. x

CHAPTER 1  INTRODUCTION............................................................................. 1
  1.1 Setting the scene ........................................................................................... 1
  1.2 Significance of the present study ................................................................. 9
  1.3 International comparative studies of journalism and media systems .......... 12
  1.4 Genesis of the research for the comparative study ....................................... 14
  1.5 On quantitative and qualitative analysis .................................................... 17
      1.5.1 Sample periods, newspapers and methods ........................................ 17
      1.5.2 Data collection and processing .......................................................... 19
  1.6 Organisation of the thesis ............................................................................ 19
  1.7 Appendices...................................................................................................... 21
  1.8 Translation of the Chinese coverage ............................................................ 21

CHAPTER 2  LITERATURE REVIEW OF THE COMPARATIVE STUDY OF INTERNATIONAL JOURNALISM ................................................................................. 23
  2.1 Press system classification according to political system ............................. 24
  2.2 Common factors influencing media and differences of degree ................... 26
  2.3 Chinese press ............................................................................................... 29
  2.4 Australian press ........................................................................................... 30
  2.5 Comparative approaches and the issue of common ground ....................... 31
  2.6 Themes emerging from the development of the Olympic Games............... 36
  2.7 Themes relating to the development of the Australian press ...................... 40
      2.7.1 The struggle for freedom of the press ............................................... 41
      2.7.2 The commercial development and the ownership of the press .......... 45
2.8 Themes relating to the development of Chinese newspapers since 1949
2.8.1 Class struggle and Cultural Revolution, 1949-1978
2.8.2 Reform and opening to the world, 1978-1989
2.8.3 Retrogression after the Tiananmen Incident, 1989-1992
2.8.4 Resuming the policy of reform and open-door relations, 1992 to the present
2.8.5 Characteristics of Chinese newspapers

2.9 Summary

CHAPTER 3 METHODOLOGY: A QUANTITATIVE AND QUALITATIVE FRAMEWORK
3.1 Questions and methods
3.2 Content analysis
3.2.1 Content analysis variables: sample validity
3.2.2 Sample selection and periods in the present study
3.2.3 Time setting in the present study
3.2.4 Sample material in the present study
3.2.5 Key words and sub-topics in the present study
3.2.6 Further content analysis variables
3.3 Critical discourse analysis
3.4 Summary

CHAPTER 4 CONTENT ANALYSIS OF PRESS REPRESENTATIONS
4.1 Content analysis categories and frequencies
4.1.1 Frequencies of sub-topics
4.1.2 Frequencies of sub-topics by period
4.1.3 Frequencies of perspectives
4.1.4 Frequencies of the appearance of actors
4.1.5 Frequencies of presentation or quotation of actors
4.1.6 Frequencies of actors’ perspectives
4.2 Foreign versus domestic news: a general factor in comparative analysis
4.3 Foreign versus domestic news: differences in the Chinese and Australian press
4.3.1 Complexity
4.3.2 Intensity
4.3.3 Solvability
4.3.4 Summary of Chinese and Australian coverage of foreign and domestic news
4.4 Frequencies of sub-topics
4.4.1 Economic activities
4.4.2 Political activities
4.4.3 Cultural issues
4.4.4 Summary of sub-topic frequencies
4.5 Frequencies of sub-topics by period
4.5.1 Period 1
6.4 Variations of Presentation ...................................................... 171
   6.4.1 Ill defined terms ......................................................... 172
   6.4.2 Figurative use of language ........................................... 174
   6.4.3 Collocation and its rhetorical force ............................... 175

6.5 Summary ................................................................................. 176

CHAPTER 7 REPRESENTATIONS OF THE 1993 BIDS AND BEIJING’S
SECOND OLYMPIC BID AND 2008 GAMES PREPARATIONS ................. 178

7.1 Chinese and Australian press representations of the 1993 bids.....
   7.1.1 Portraying each other’s bidding rivalry in the 1993 bid ............ 178
   7.1.2 The Australian newspapers’ pause in reporting the bribery scandal in Sydney’s bid. 182
   7.1.3 The Chinese press kept the silence on Sydney’s bribery scandal ... 187

7.2 Australian representations of Beijing’s second bid and Games preparations ............................................................................ 190
   7.2.1 Australian coverage of Beijing’s second Olympic bid .............. 191
   7.2.2 Australian representations of Beijing’s preparations for the 2008 Games .... 197

7.3 Chinese official publicity and the role of the press .............. 208
   7.3.1 Chinese official publicity and the “low-key” strategy ............... 208
   7.3.1.1 The new motto .................................................... 209
   7.3.1.2 The themes for the bid ......................................... 213
   7.3.1.3 The emblem for the bid ....................................... 215
   7.3.1.4 The “Beijing 2008” publication ................................ 217
   7.3.2 Chinese press representation of official publicity and campaign activities ...... 221
   7.3.2.1 Xinhua News Agency ......................................... 222
   7.3.2.2 The People’s Daily .............................................. 230

7.4 Summary ................................................................................. 235

CHAPTER 8 CONCLUSIONS .............................................................. 237

References ...................................................................................... 245

Appendices .................................................................................... 265
   Appendix A The Sydney Morning Herald .................................... 266
   Appendix B The Australian ...................................................... 285
   Appendix C The People’s Daily .................................................. 305
   Appendix D Xinhua News Agency ............................................. 323
   Appendix E China Daily ........................................................... 338
   Appendix F Emblems for Beijing’s two Olympic Bids .................. 346
Abbreviations

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Abbreviation</th>
<th>Full Form</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AOC</td>
<td>Australian Olympic Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ATHOC</td>
<td>The Athens 2004 Organizing Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BOBICO</td>
<td>Beijing Olympic Games Bid Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>BOCOG</td>
<td>The Beijing Organising Committee for the Games of the 2008 Olympic Games</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CD</td>
<td>China Daily</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CPC</td>
<td>The Communist Party of China</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IAAF</td>
<td>International Amateur Athletic Federation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IOC</td>
<td>International Olympic Committee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PD</td>
<td>The People’s Daily</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SOBL</td>
<td>The Sydney Olympics 2000 Bid Limited</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SOCOG</td>
<td>Sydney Organising Committee for the 2000 Olympic Games</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SMH</td>
<td>The Sydney Morning Herald</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TA</td>
<td>The Australian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Xinhua</td>
<td>Xinhua News Agency</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>List of Tables</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>---</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 List of sub-topics</td>
<td>83</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 List of perspectives</td>
<td>85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 List of actors</td>
<td>87</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Complexity: parties per sub-topic</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 Frequencies of use of actors</td>
<td>106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 Lexical choices in coverage of the bidding presentations at Barcelona</td>
<td>118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7 Lexical choices in coverage of the IOC delegation’s inspection tours of Beijing and Sydney</td>
<td>122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8 Lexical choices of the newspapers’ coverage of the IOC delegation’s inspection tour of Beijing in February 2001</td>
<td>125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9 Lexical choices of the newspapers coverage of Beijing’s bid before final ballot</td>
<td>129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10 Lexical analysis of the press coverage of the preparations issues</td>
<td>132</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11 Lexical analysis of the press concerns with the Games</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>